JLS Automation adds Western Region Sales Manager

JLS Automation of York, PA announces the addition of Mr. Barry Meyer to the JLS Team. Barry will become the new Region Sales Manager for the Western Region of the United States and Canada. “Cuda”, as Barry is known by many in the industry, brings to JLS his extensive career in end of line packaging. In addition to this experience, he brings a strong background in collaborative, customer-centric processes yielding value for customers in the food processing industry.

According to VP of Sales and Marketing, Mark “Sparky” Ewing, “‘Cuda’ and I have worked together in the past. Since we realized success previously, it was an easy decision to make him part of Team JLS. After our expansion in the western US (our branch in Boise, ID), we have realized significant benefits from being closer to our customers. We are delighted with our continuing growth and anticipate Barry will quickly ramp-up our market and account development efforts in the West”.

JLS offers robotic-based automation solutions for a variety of Consumer Packaged Goods markets, but is focused on primary product handling of food items along with a growing number of secondary packaging applications. JLS is based in York, PA with a deep technical staff of more than a dozen engineers and designers along with a team of mechanical and electrical assemblers. Despite the global recession, JLS has enjoyed significant growth in the last twelve months by offering high value systems to its growing list of customers who are interested in higher productivity and cost reduction.
